GENERAL INFORMATION

GENERAL INFORMATION

This Form is used as part of the assessment process to determine whether a person is suitable for employment or other engagement for work or other entitlement.

Unless statutory obligations require otherwise, the information provided on this Form will not be used without your prior consent for any purpose other than in relation to the assessment of your suitability. You may be required to complete another consent form in the future in relation to employment in other positions.

NATIONAL POLICE HISTORY CHECK

A national police history check is an integral part of the assessment of your suitability. You should note that the existence of a record does not mean that you will be assessed automatically as being unsuitable. Each case will be assessed on its merit, so it is in your interest to provide full and frank details in the form.

Information extracted from this Form will be forwarded to the CrimTrac Agency and other Australian police agencies for checking action. By signing this Form you are consenting to these agencies accessing their records to obtain and disclose police history information that relates to you to: (i) the accredited agency named in Section 3 above; and (ii) where applicable the employer/organisation named in Section 4 above.

include outstanding information may charges, and history convictions/findings of guilt recorded against you that may be disclosed according to the laws of the relevant jurisdiction and, in the absence of any laws governing the release of that information, according to the relevant jurisdiction's information release policy.

It is usual practice for an applicant's personal information to be disclosed to Australian police agencies for them to use for their respective law enforcement purposes including the investigation of any outstanding criminal offences.

SPENT CONVICTIONS SCHEMES

The aim of spent convictions legislation is to prevent discrimination on the basis of certain previous convictions. Spent convictions legislation limits the use and disclosure of older, less serious convictions and findings of guilt.

Spent convictions of specific offences will be released where the check is required for certain purposes regardless of how old they are.

Australian police agency will apply the relevant Spent Convictions legislation/information release policy prior to disclosure.

If further information or clarification is required please contact the individual police agencies directly for further information about their release policies and any legislation that affects

Western Australia

Under the provisions of Section 7(1) of the Spent Convictions Act 1988 (WA) only "lesser convictions" can be spent by Western Australia Police, after a time period of 10 years plus any term of imprisonment that may have been imposed. A lesser conviction is one for which imprisonment of 12 months or less, or a fine of less than $15,000 was imposed. All other convictions, such as "serious convictions" applicable under Section 6 of the Act can only be spent by applying to the District Court. At the time of sentencing, the Court may make a "spent conviction order" under the Sentencing Act 1995 (WA) that the conviction is a spent conviction for the purposes of the Spent Convictions Act 1988 (WA).

South Australia

Release of information on a National Police Check is governed by the South Australian Spent Convictions Act 2009. It is an offence to release information regarding the convictions of a person if those convictions are deemed to be 'spent' under the Act.

A spent conviction is one that cannot be disclosed or taken into consideration for any purpose. Eligible convictions become spent following a 10 year conviction and proven offence-free period for adults, and a 5 year conviction and proven offence-free period for juveniles.

The Act defines a conviction as:

- i). a formal finding of guilt by a Court;
- ii). a finding by a Court that an offence has been proved.

Certain convictions can never be spent. These include but are not limited to:

- i), convictions of sex offences:
- ii). convictions where a sentence is imposed of more than 12 months imprisonment for an adult, or 24 months imprisonment for a juvenile.

Schedule 1 of the Act sets out a number of exceptions to the rule where spent convictions can be released. Some examples of this include:

- i). the care of children;
- ii). the care of vulnerable people (including the aged and persons with a disability, illness or
- iii). activities associated with statutory character tests for licensing

Interstate offences are released in accordance with that State or Territory's spent conviction / rehabilitation legislation and policy. Intelligence-type information is not released.

¹Australian Federal Police, The New South Wales Police Force, Victoria Police, Queensland Police Service, South Australia Police, Western Australia Police, Tasmania Police Service, Northern Territory Police Force.

²Applicable spent conviction legislation, as amended from time to time.

Commonwealth

Part VIIC of the Crimes Act 1914 (Cth) deals with aspects of the collection, use and disclosure of old conviction information. The main element of this law is a "Spent Convictions Scheme". The aim of the Scheme is to prevent discrimination on the basis of certain previous convictions, once a waiting period (usually 10 years) has passed and provided the individual has not re-offended during this period. The Scheme also covers situations where an individual has had a conviction "quashed" or has been "pardoned".

A "spent conviction" is a conviction of a Commonwealth, Territory, State or foreign offence that satisfies all of the following conditions:

- i). it is 10 years since the date of the conviction (or 5 years for juvenile offenders); AND
- ii). the individual was not sentenced to imprisonment or was not sentenced to imprisonment for more than 30 months: AND
- iii). the individual has not re-offended during the 10 years (5 years for juvenile offenders) waiting period: AND
- iv), a statutory or prescribed exclusion does not apply. (A full list of exclusions is available from the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner).
- The law affects Commonwealth authorities in the following ways:
- i). a person with a conviction protected by Part VIIC does not have to disclose that conviction to any person, including a Commonwealth authority, unless an exclusion applies;
- ii). Commonwealth authorities are prohibited from accessing, disclosing or taking into account spent convictions of Commonwealth offences.

Part VIIC and Crimes Regulations 1990 provide for "statutory" or "regulatory" exclusions that will prevent certain Commonwealth convictions from being spent in certain circumstances.

Queensland

Under Queensland's Criminal Law (Rehabilitation of Offenders) Act 1986 a conviction automatically becomes spent upon completion of the prescribed (rehabilitation) period. This period is: 1> 10 years for indictable offences where the offender was an adult at the time of conviction; and 2> 5 years for other (summary offences or where the offender was a juvenile). Where a person is convicted of a subsequent offence (an offence other than a simple or regulatory offence) during the rehabilitation period, the period runs from the date of the subsequent conviction.

Convictions where the offender is sentenced to more than 30 months imprisonment (whether or not that sentence is suspended) are excluded from the regime.

Once the rehabilitation period has expired, it is lawful for a person to deny (including under oath) that the person has been convicted of the offence, and the conviction must be disregarded for occupational licensing purposes (subject to certain exceptions, see below). It is unlawful for any person to disclose the conviction unless: (i) the convicted person consents; (ii) the Minister has granted a permit authorising disclosure (where there is a legitimate and sufficient purpose for disclosing); (iii) the disclosure is subject to an exemption.

Victoria Police

For the purposes of employment, voluntary work or occupational licensing/registration, police may restrict the release of a person's police record according to the Victoria Police "Information Release Policy". If you have a police record the "Information Release Policy" may take into account the age of the police record and the purpose for which the information is being released. If 10 years have elapsed since you were last found guilty of an offence, police will, in most instances, advise that you have no disclosable court outcomes. However, a record over 10 years may be released if: (i) it includes a term of imprisonment longer than 30 months; (ii) it includes a serious, violent or sexual offence and the check is for the purpose of working with children, elderly people or disabled people; (iii) it is in the interests of crime prevention or public safety.

Findings of guilt without conviction and good behaviour bonds may be released. Recent charges or outstanding matters under investigation that have not yet gone to court may also be released.

New South Wales

In New South Wales the Criminal Records Act 1991 (NSW) governs the effect of a person's conviction for a relatively minor offence if the person completes a period of crime-free behaviour, and makes provision with respect to quashed convictions and pardons.

A "quashed" conviction is a conviction that has been set aside by the Court. A "pardon' means a free and absolute pardon that has been granted to a person because he/she was wrongly convicted of a Commonwealth, Territory, State or foreign offence. In relation to NSW convictions, a conviction generally becomes a "spent conviction" if a person has had a 10 year crime-free period from the date of the conviction. However, certain convictions may not become spent. These include: (i) where a prison sentence of more than 6 months has been imposed (periodic or home detention is not considered a prison sentence); (ii) convictions against companies and other corporate bodies; (iii) sexual offences pursuant to the Criminal Records Act 1991; and (iv) convictions prescribed by the Regulations

PROVISION OF FALSE OR MISLEADING INFORMATION

You are asked to certify that the personal information you have provided on this form is correct. If it is subsequently discovered, for example as a result of a check of police records, that you have provided false or misleading information, you may be assessed as unsuitable

It is a serious offence to provide false or misleading information
