

This information is provided to help you complete the application form and guide you through the application process.

Important – Please read this information carefully before you complete your application. Once you have completed your application we strongly advise that you keep a copy for your records.

- Step 2 Check that you meet the residence requirement (see pages 2–3)
- Step 3 Learn what it means to become an Australian citizen (see page 3)

You must be in Australia when the department makes a decision about your application except in certain, limited circumstances described in Step 2 – Residence requirement.

Integrity of application

The department is committed to maintaining the integrity of the visa and citizenship programmes. If you or a third party acting on your behalf provide, or have provided in a previous application, false or misleading information or documents (either knowingly or otherwise), this application may be refused. In addition, you may be prosecuted under the Migration Act 1958 and/or the Australian Citizenship Act 2007. If information or documents are found to be fraudulent or misleading after you become an Australian citizen, you may be prosecuted and may be subject to revocation of your Australian citizenship.

Step 1 – Eligibility

You should use this form if you:

- are aged 60 and over – you will need to show you understand the nature of your application, or
- have a permanent or enduring physical or mental incapacity, or
- have a permanent loss or substantial hearing, speech or sight impairment.

If you belong to any of the above categories, you will also need to:

- be a permanent resident, and
- satisfy the residence requirement, and
- be likely to reside, or to continue to reside, in Australia or to maintain a close and continuing association with Australia.

You should also use this form if you:

- are 16 or 17 years of age – you must be a permanent resident when you apply and when a decision is made on your application. You also need to:
 - satisfy the residence requirement at the time of your application (or show that you would suffer significant hardship or disadvantage if you had to meet this requirement)
 - understand the nature of your application
 - have a basic knowledge of the English language
 - have an adequate knowledge of the responsibilities and privileges of Australian citizenship at the time of decision
 - be likely to reside or continue to reside in Australia, or maintain a close and continuing association with Australia.

or

- are under 16 years of age – you must be a permanent resident when you apply and when a decision is made on your application. You also need to be living with:
 - a responsible parent who is an Australian citizen, or
 - a responsible parent who is not an Australian citizen and you would otherwise suffer significant hardship or disadvantage

Your application form must be signed by the responsible parent you live with.

or

- are an unaccompanied humanitarian minor – if you are an unaccompanied humanitarian minor and you are a ward of the Minister, then your application requires the consent of the Minister’s delegate.

If you are an unaccompanied humanitarian minor and you are not a ward of the Minister then your application requires the consent of your responsible carer.

- were born in Papua before 16 September 1975 and one of your parents was born in Australia, as it is now, and was an Australian citizen at the time of your birth, or
- were born to a former Australian citizen who automatically lost Australian citizenship by acquiring the citizenship of another country as an adult.

The Citizenship Wizard on the citizenship website can help you check your eligibility.

Good character

If you are 18 years of age and over, you will need to show you are of good character.

New Zealand citizens

Special eligibility conditions apply for New Zealand citizens who arrived in Australia before 26 February 2001 (see New Zealand citizens on page 9).

Children

Children under 16 years of age can be included on a responsible parent’s application form, or can apply on their own form.

The Australian Citizenship Act 2007 defines responsible parent in relation to a child as:

- a parent, unless that parent does not have parental responsibility because of orders made by the Family Court of Australia, or
- any person having responsibility over the child because of an order made by the Family Court, or
- any person who has guardianship or custody of the child under an Australian law or a foreign law, whether because of adoption, operation of law, an order of a court or otherwise.

Step 2 – Residence requirement

The residence requirement is based on the time you have lived in Australia and the time you have spent outside Australia. The Residence Requirement Calculator on the citizenship website can help you calculate whether you meet this requirement.

General residence requirement

Permanent residents must:

- have been living in Australia on a valid Australian visa for 4 years immediately before applying which must include the last 12 months as a permanent resident, and
- not have been absent from Australia for more than one year in the past 4 years, including no more than 90 days in the year before applying.

Special residence requirements

Special residence requirements may apply to you if:

- you are seeking to undertake activities that are supported by particular organisations, such as the Australian Olympic Committee, or
- you have been engaged in particular kinds of work for a total of 2 in the past 4 years, that required you to travel outside Australia.

Additional documents are required to apply for either of these special residence requirements.

For more information see Special residence requirements applicants on page 9.

Note: If you have spent time in prison or a psychiatric institution by order of a court in the 4 years immediately before making your application, that time during which you were confined cannot be counted as residence in Australia.

Defence service requirement

You meet the residence requirement if you have completed relevant defence service, which is if you:

- were appointed, enlisted or transferred into any of the permanent forces or reserves of the Commonwealth of Australia, and
- have served 90 days in the permanent forces, or
- have served a total of 90 paid service days in the navy, army or air force reserve, or
- were discharged from defence service as medically unfit for service as a result of that service.

If you are a member of the family unit of a defence person you meet the residence requirement if:

- the defence person was granted one of the following visas on or after 1 July 2007: Labour Agreement (Migrant) Class AU, Labour Agreement (Residence) Class BV, Employer Nomination (Permanent) Class EN, Regional Employer Nomination (Permanent) Class RN, and
- you were included as an applicant in the visa application of the defence person and were granted the same type of visa at the same time, and
- you still hold that same visa, and
- the defence person has completed relevant defence service or dies while undertaking that service.

Ministerial discretions

There are a number of ministerial discretions which may be applied to an application to assist a person to meet the residence requirement for Australian citizenship.

1. If you were in Australia as an unlawful non-citizen during the 4 years immediately before making your application and it was as the result of an administrative error, then that period of time may be treated as a period of lawful residence in Australia.
2. If you were in Australia as a lawful non-citizen but not as a permanent resident as the result of an administrative error, then that period of time may be treated as a period of permanent residence.
3. If you were in Australia as a lawful non-citizen, but not as a permanent resident during the 12 months immediately before application, then that period of time may be treated as a period of permanent residence if you would otherwise suffer significant hardship or disadvantage.

4. Time spent in prison or a psychiatric institution by order of a court in the 4 years immediately before making your application may be counted as time in Australia if your conviction has been quashed.
5. If you are the spouse or de facto partner of an Australian citizen, or surviving spouse or partner of an Australian citizen at the time you make your application, and you spent time outside Australia as a permanent resident in the 4 years immediately before making your application, you may treat those periods of absence as time in Australia if, during each period of absence:
 - you were the spouse or de facto partner of that Australian citizen, and
 - they were an Australian citizen, and
 - you maintained a close and continuing association with Australia.
6. If you spent time outside Australia as a permanent resident in the 12 months immediately before making your application, as the holder of an interdependent visa and your interdependent partner was an Australian citizen during your periods of absence, you may treat those periods of absence as time in Australia if you had a close and continuing association with Australia during those periods of absence.

You will need to provide documents to support your claims at the time you lodge your application.

Step 3 – Learn what it means to become an Australian citizen

It is important that you understand what becoming an Australian citizen involves. The citizenship resource book or DVD, Australian Citizenship: Our Common Bond provides useful information. To download the book or watch the DVD, visit the department's website www.border.gov.au/trav/citi/lear/citizenship-test/Australian-citizenship-test-resource

Step 4 – Original documents

You will need to provide the department with a range of documents to prove that you are who you say you are and to establish you have not had any serious criminal convictions. These documents are called identity documents and good character documents.

When applying for a Ministerial discretion to enable you to meet the residence requirement or concession fees, you will need to provide additional documents – these are called supporting documents.

You must provide original documents at your citizenship appointment. If you have to get documents from overseas this can take time.

You will not be able to complete the application process without these documents.

Translations and certified copies

If your documents are not in English, you must provide official translations. In Australia, you must use translators accredited by the National Accreditation Authority of Translators and Interpreters. For more information, see www.naati.com.au

Unless specified that original documents are required, certified copies of original documents must be attached to your application. These copies must be certified by a person with the appropriate authority. See Identity declarations – list of professions on pages 9–10 for people who can certify documents.

If you are outside Australia when applying, contact the Australian diplomatic mission in the country that issued the documents for advice on acceptable translators, and who can certify your original documents.

If you need to provide overseas penal clearance certificates with your application, you must provide original certificates.

Identity documents

Applicants 16 years of age or over

You must provide identity documents for yourself and all children included in your application.

For yourself, you must provide the following documents.

1. Three original documents that collectively show your:
 - photograph
 - signature
 - current residential address
 - birth name, date of birth and gender.
2. Proof of change of name, if applicable.
3. Part F – Identity declaration completed by a person with the appropriate authority.

If you do not provide these documents, your application will not be accepted and will be returned to you.

Children

If you are including children under 16 years of age in your application (Question 28), or you are an applicant under 16 years of age, you must provide the following:

1. Identity documents that show a:
 - birth name and date of birth
 - photograph and current name, if available.
2. Proof of change of name, if applicable.

Circumstances when an application cannot be approved

- your identity cannot be verified.
- you are not in Australia at the time of decision on your application and have applied for citizenship under the provisions for incapacity, a hearing, speech or sight impairment or are aged 60 or over. (If you have an Australian citizen spouse or partner the decision maker may use a discretion to approve your application while you are outside Australia.)
- it is less than 12 months since you last ceased to be an Australian citizen.
- there is an adverse or qualified security assessment in place in relation to you, or you have been convicted of a national security offence.

Criminal offences

If you are 16 years of age or over, the department will request a National Police check from the National Police Checking Service (NPCS).

If any of the following circumstances apply to you, your application for Australian citizenship cannot be approved:

- when proceedings for an offence against an Australian law (including proceedings by way of appeal or review) are pending.
- when it is less than 2 years since you were released from prison after serving a prison sentence of 12 months or more, or 10 years if you are a repeat offender.
- you are subject to certain conditions set by an Australian court (such as being released on parole, good behaviour or bail) where action may be taken against you for breach of those conditions.
- you are in prison or a psychiatric institution by order of the court at the time of decision.

Good character

If you are 18 years of age or over, you will also need to be assessed under the good character requirement.

Convictions

You must tell the department about any convictions you may have had in Australia or overseas.

A conviction is a criminal charge leading to a guilty verdict in a court of law resulting in imprisonment or a fine or good behaviour bond. A traffic infringement, such as an on-the-spot speeding or parking fine is not considered a conviction.

If any of the above apply to you at the time you lodge your application please call the Citizenship Information Line.

Spent convictions

You must declare spent convictions in your application.

The spent convictions law allows people with minor convictions to disregard those convictions after a certain period of time. A conviction may be considered spent if:

- it is 10 years since the date of the conviction (or 5 years for juvenile offenders), and
- the person was not sentenced to imprisonment for more than 30 months, and
- the person has not re-offended during the 10 years (or 5 years for juveniles) period, and

Please refer to and read the information regarding spent convictions at www.border.gov.au/citizenship

Overseas penal clearance certificates

Overseas penal clearance certificates, or police checks as they are known in some countries, show whether a person has a criminal record.

You may need to provide an overseas penal clearance certificate as part of your documentation if you are 18 years of age or over.

Penal clearance certificates from overseas countries are required if:

- you lived or travelled outside Australia since the age of 18 years or over, and

In addition, New Zealand citizens who do not hold a permanent visa, must provide a penal clearance certificate from New Zealand if they have left Australia since the age of 18, irrespective of destination or the amount of time spent overseas. For more information contact the Citizenship Information Line.

Information about where to obtain an overseas penal clearance certificate by country can be obtained from the citizenship website or contact the Citizenship Information Line.
