EPR STATEMENT

The Supreme Court of Wisconsin has mandated a 3-hour ethics and professional responsibility (EPR) requirement as part of its regular 30-hour requirement. Specify by line number those activities you have attended or taught in satisfaction of the EPR requirement:

Note that the Board of Bar Examiners must have approved an activity for EPR purposes for it to qualify.

TEACHING

TEACHING CREDIT: SCR 31.05(3) governs teaching credit. Lawyers who teach approved courses are entitled to claim an additional hour for each hour taught. Indicate the number of hours actually taught in the "Hours Taught" column and double that number in the adjacent column. Lawyers who also attended a portion of the course may claim attendance credit for those hours in the "Attendance" portion of the form. To receive proper credit, list attendance and teaching separately. Teaching an entire law school course yields one hour for each hour taught.
