INTRODUCTION

Prevention is better than cure. Over the years an increasing awareness has developed in respect of the potential for some of the substances and processes used in industry which might expose employees to the risk of diseases. Such diseases may cost numerous compensation claims each year ! More seriously such incidents may create a negative impression on the company concerned.

Responsible employers have duty to protect their employees from such diseases under the Laws. Some industrial diseases may develop over years and affected employees may have to bring claims against all the employers even after many years.
